JULY 2016

Editor's Column

At the 2009 Masters Tournament, a golfer failed to get his ball out of a bunker. Clearly frustrated, the golfer kicked at the sand before playing his next shot from the same bunker.

At the end of the round, he submitted his scorecard. However, a question was later raised on whether, by kicking the sand, the golfer had infringed Rule 13-4 a) which states: 'The player must not test the condition of the hazard or any similar hazard'.

The golfer was then asked to review the video recording, and to clarify his actions. If he admitted that it was an act of frustration, he would have been immediately disqualified for signing an incorrect score card as the rules of golf do not allow for the surface of the sand to be intentionally disturbed out of a golfer's frustration, and a 2 stroke penalty should have been imposed.

Fortunately, the officials accepted the golfer's explanation that he was smoothening the sand, and may have done so in a "slightly vigorous manner". He made it clear that he was not seeking to gain any advantage by testing the condition of the sand or improving his stance.

While the golfer's knowledge of the rules had helped him avoid disqualification, the incident is a good reminder about the need for proper behavior on the course, even when we may be having a "bad golf" day.

SGA Centralised Handicapping System (CHS)

On 4 August 2016, SGA will launch the Centralised Handicapping System (CHS) for its Ordinary and Associate Members. The CHS will provide a modern and unified platform for golf handicapping, changing the way golfers perform their handicapping activities, and introducing consistency in calculation of golfers' Handicap Index.

Members of SGA Ordinary and Associate Members must register at the SGA CHS website at chs.sga.org.sg before they can use CHS. Registration will open on 20 Jun 16 and close on 25 Jul 2016.

During registration, golfers are required to fill in the data requested and indicate that they give consent to their data being collected, used and/or disclosed. This may include their name, gender, golf club(s) of which they are a member, membership number, Handicap Index, scoring records, dates and places of play.

Golfers who have successfully registered and have had their membership details authenticated by their home club will be sent an email on 4 Aug 16 to activate their account. They will also be requested to set their password before they can start using CHS. In addition, golfers will be required to give their consent again before activation is successful. Once this is done, golfers are free to post their scores immediately anywhere and anytime.

Access Your Handicap Index and Post Scores Anytime, Anywhere

Golfers will now be able to perform all their handicapping activities via multiple channels, including web, their iOS or Android devices and their club's terminals. With such user friendly options to choose from, posting scores and checking handicaps will be a breeze.

Real Time Peer Review

Golfers will be able to see their fellow golfer's posted scores as soon as they have been posted to the system. This allows you to check on one another's scores almost instantaneously.

Frequently Asked Questions

Please refer to CHS FAQ at SGA website www.sga.org.sg for more details.

House & Facilities

Double Parking

The limited parking facilities at CGC, especially at weekends and during certain club events, is a known constraint.

It has been observed that some members have been resorting to "double parking", whereby they block another car that is occupying a proper parking lot. While these members have shown consideration by leaving their car keys with the security guard, members must be aware that CGC will not be responsible for any loss of or damage to vehicles or their contents.

Ultimately, such services are not included in the official duties as security personnel and CGC will not be liable for any inadvertent mishap that may arise from keys being left with security guards when members resort to "double parking".
